I took the phone and looked at the hour: 9:06 AM, "I'm late!", so I got up, closed the window and opened the wardrobe. My brown hair was tousled but my skin was already covered by decent clothes, so I ran into the bathroom, I brushed my teeth and put a blue striped headband in my wavy long hair.

I went to the door, took my keys, and said goodbye to Misty, Queeny and Fiona: my black baby cats. As always, they meowed.

I pressed the elevator button and while I waited I tried to switch on the light but it didn't work. "I'll leave a message to the neighbor to repair it". Whilst I was thinking this I had already arrived to the garage.

I came across Izan, he stared at my eyes and we said hi shyly. I continued my way to the car waiting a word anxiously, but I hadn't arrived to the car when he said "Hey!". In that moment I wanted to turn very quickly but I had to be more clever: if I turn quickly he'll know I'm anxious, but if I wait a few seconds..."It isn't time to think about stupid things" I thought. Then I turned and he said "Your headband has fallen" He gave it to me and I said "Thanks darling, it's my favorite one" He laughed and turned back again...I was upset, I didn't expect that.

I got into my new white car and stayed in silence a few minutes to think about what had just happened. I plucked up my courage and got out of the car. I was going to the door when he appeared there and kissed me!

I didn't know what to do next so I invited him to have dinner in my house. He accepted. I asked "What time is it?" and he said "9.21 AM, I didn't know that you worked on Sundays, I usually come at this hour from my daily run" I was surprised, it was Sunday!

I went back to my house with my cats and we slept a very long nap.

When we woke up, I called Kyla, my best friend, and we talked about what had happened: "Now I'm awake because if you remember Izan is coming to have dinner tonight and I have to surprise him. I'm gonna prepare...duck! Or should I prepare sushi? Maybe he prefers pasta..." She saw me nervous so she said "Fish and chips; the easiest and fast food ever invented." I agreed. When we finished talking I had an idea: "I'm going to put some candles and quiet music".

Ding Dong Ding dong He rang.

"It must be him" I was very nervous. I looked to the mirror and said to myself that all would be okay.

I opened the door, hoping not to faint. "He's wearing a suit? I'm gonna die" I thought. I didn't know if to say a compliment..."Black is your perfect" He smiled

"May I enter, Kevin?" he asked.

"Of course, Izan" I replied.
